

Tsegaye Laurendeau is a partner at Gaillard Banifatemi Shelbaya Disputes. Prior to joining the firm, Tsegaye was Counsel at Shearman & Sterling LLP where he practiced for over 10 years. His experience includes international arbitrations under the ICC, ICSID, CRCICA, HKIAC and UNCITRAL Arbitration Rules, with a focus on M&A, investment funds, international financing and joint venture disputes in the oil & gas, power, mining, construction and telecoms sectors. He has been recognised by Who's Who Legal: Arbitration – Future Leaders each year since 2018 as “adept at steering cases and handling experts”, “a brilliant arbitration lawyer”, “one of the best arbitration lawyers of his generation”, “a top-notch attorney, absolutely competent with a great personality” who is “rapidly establishing himself as one of the leading practitioners, notably in Africa-related disputes”. Tsegaye began his career as a Project Finance lawyer in a magic circle firm, acting for financial institutions and sponsors in relation to the financing and development of large energy and infrastructure projects in Africa and the Middle East.
